District discipline policies under fire

SAD #44 "has got to clean up their act."

THOMAS S. CAREY
Attorney for Ryan Stowell's family

By MICHAEL DANIELS

SAD #44 is facing one civil suit and the possibility of others as a result of recent disciplinary actions by the district administration and school board.

On Monday, Telstar freshman Augusta Yates of Andover filed suit in Oxford County Superior Court demanding that her school records be cleared. Augusta had been suspended following a pushing/punching incident on a school bus in February; then arrested and led from the school in handcuffs in mid-April, after she had returned to the school despite the suspension. (See stories below.)

And next Monday, at the SAD #44 Board of Directors meeting, an attorney for Ryan Stowell's family plans to demand—in open session-- that the district change a number of aspects of its disciplinary policy.

The demands stem from the school administration's handling of an investigation of a February incident in which Ryan, a senior, threw an orange in a school corridor. The orange struck a female student in the head with such force that she was temporarily paralyzed and had to be taken to the hospital by ambulance.

Ryan eventually acknowledged throwing the orange, and he was given a long-term suspension.

Ryan ultimately did not graduate with his class, and his picture did not appear in the class yearbook.

But recently Ryan's mother, Aline Crockett, has challenged the manner in which the administration handled Fourteen-year-old Augusta Yates wants her name cleared.

She wants erased from her files the suspension for fighting, the criminal trespassing charge and any records of the day she was removed from Telstar High School in handcuffs and taken to jail by the police.

Monday she went to court to accomplish that. She came carrying briefs she and her father had written to support her motion for a trial in her suit against SAD #44.

"You have to stand up for yourself when you think you're right," Yates said. "You have to stand up for what you believe in."

The freshman student, with the support of her parents, Larry and Carol Yates of Andover, has filed a civil suit in Oxford County Superior Court against SAD #44 to have "all charges expunged" from her school record and a three-day suspension from classes reversed. A hearing on a motion for a trial will be scheduled in September, according to court clerk Donna Howe.

The "above average" student and school track star said she seeks no money in the legal matter but only to have her reputation restored.

Yates was suspended from classes April 13 for fighting on a school bus in February. She said she did not agree to serve the punishment be-

Augusta Yates calls suspension unfair

The Telstar school bus was more crowded than usual on Feb. 27 when freshman Augusta Yates took her normal seat three rows from the back.

Because the bus also was carrying students who had participated in a spelling bee, a group of middle school student settled in at the back of the bus with the high school students.

Yates claims that the younger students taunted her during the first half-hour of the ride, made "rude remarks" to her and her high school friends, and called Yates a name.

Sometime along the way, two of Yates' friends wrote "dirty" notes to two middle school students who were seated in front of Yates. The high school girls, apparently afraid they would get in trouble for the notes, decided they wanted them back.

Yates said she was not involved in writing the notes, but did agree to try to retrieve them.

Yates reached around one of the girls and clutched at the school bag where the notes had been placed.

When she straightened back up on her seat, Yates claims the middle school student purposely

Earlier mail call irks local businesses

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Beginning July 1 local residents and businesses will have to get their outgoing mail to the post office an hour earlier--and not everyone's happy about the change.

"All of a sudden our working day is getting shorter," said Bethel attorney Dan Reich. "This is going to be a major inconvenience for us."

Nancie Coan, Bethel site manager for National Training Laboratories, called the change "ridiculous--they just keep charging more for poorer service."

The decision to push up the mail pick-up time was made by postal officials in Portland, who claim it's necessary to meet the postal service's goal of consistent overnight delivery throughout the state.

"Maine presents unique geographical and logistical problems," said Bob Balko, director of operations services at the Maine Sectional Center in Portland. Balko said that, in theory at least, the Postal Service is already committed to providing overnight service between, for ex-

Bethel shoreland zoning rules approved

By MARK SHANAHAN

Eight Bethel residents turned out for a special town meeting Thursday night to approve a revised shoreland zoning ordinance.

The Maine Department of Environmental Protection had originally required towns to ratify the ordinance, which regulates development in five zone areas, before Dec. 31 last year.

However, due to the state's continuing financial difficulties, the DEP mandate was relaxed and towns which had not yet adopted the ordinance were allowed until the end of this month to do so.

Drafted by the town's three-person shoreland zoning committee, the ordinance approved in seven minutes Thursday closely resembles the shoreland zoning ordinance recommended by the state.

"Unlike some other towns, we didn't want to make it any more stringent than the state ordinance," said Stacy Benjamin, the Bethel planning assistant.

Notable among the changes in the new ordinance are the inclusion of two areas, non-forested wetlands and selected streams, which were previously unprotected by the town's shoreland ordinance.

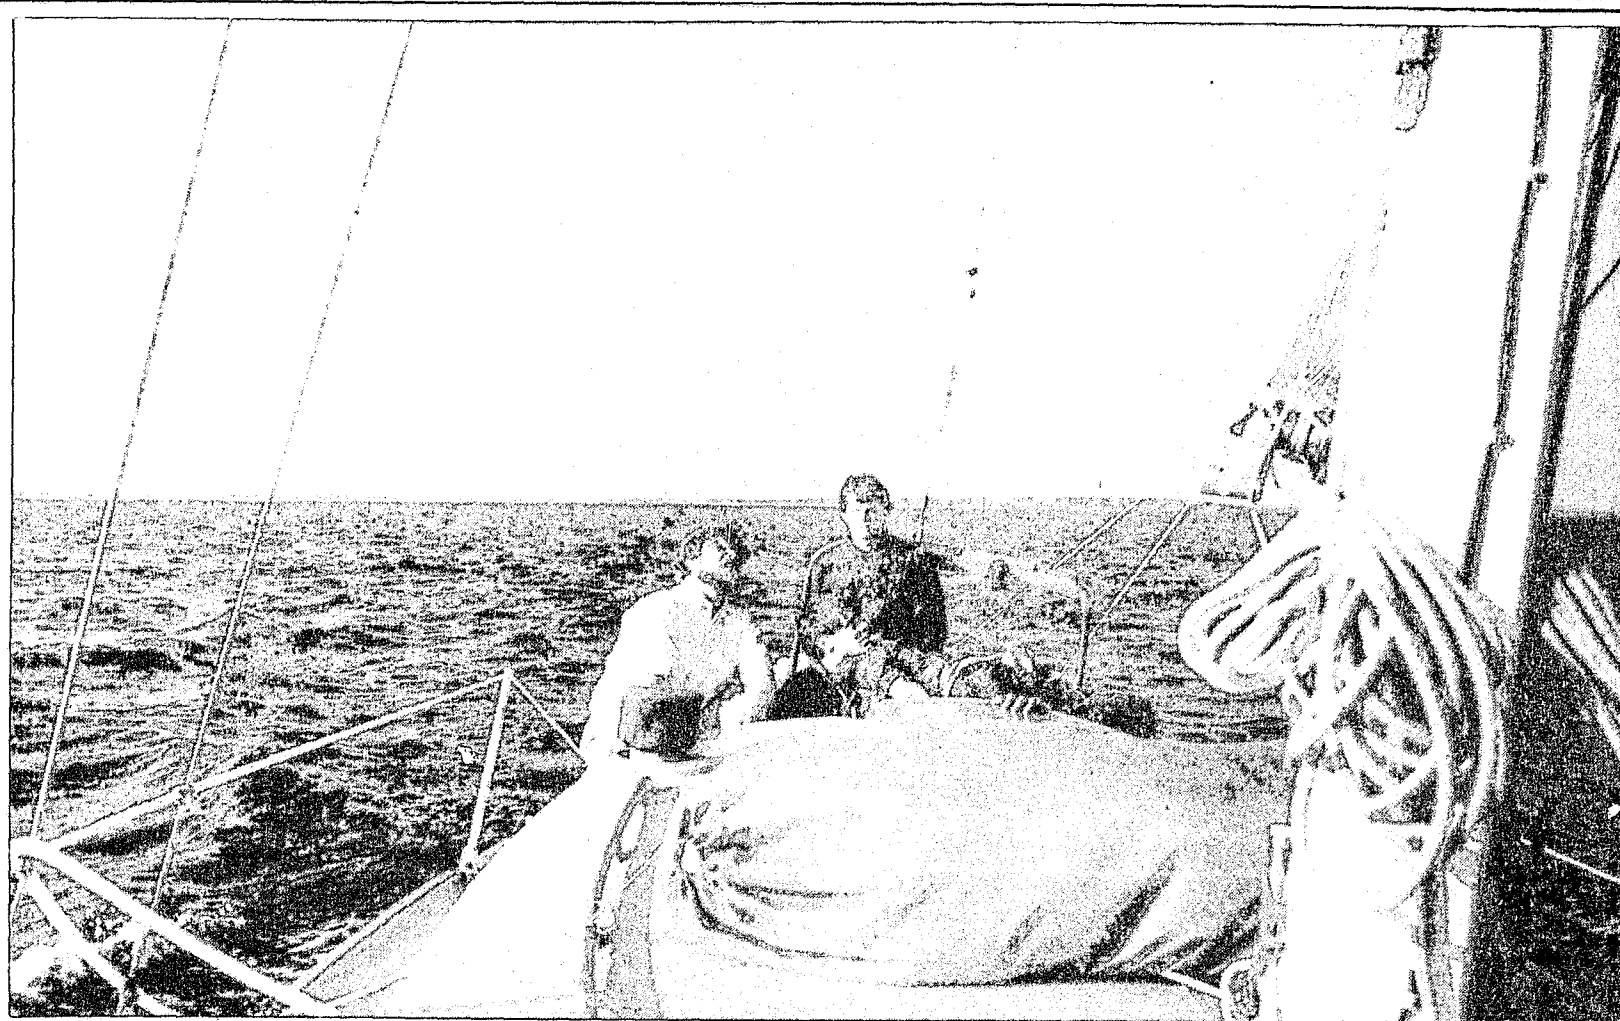

The five zones profiled in the new ordinance are resource protection (which includes much of the 100-year floodplain), limited residential, limited commercial, general development, and the new stream pro-

GOULD PRACTICAL NAVIGATORS--Gould Academy students Eric Schneider and Ben Ellis, along with associate headmaster Dr. Dutch Dresser, put their navigational experience to the test while cruising the coast of Maine. Dresser uses the complexities of celestial navigation as a means of inducing students to ponder new spatial relationships and become practiced in the use of abstruse mathematical tools.

Shooting stars at Gould

By KIRK SIEGEL

Gould Academy's Associate Headmaster, Dr. Harry Dresser, doesn't exactly cut the image of a sailor. Though robust, sandy-haired and possessing a brisk stride that might hint at many seasons of sailing and cycling, most of his days at Gould find "Dutch" in dress shirt and tie, in the second floor office of the classical revival classroom building.

Surrounded by the computers, navigational charts, and student course schedules, which suggest the varied angles of his service to Gould, Dutch prepares for his classes in celestial navigation and computer programming in Pascal, oversees the entire curriculum for Gould's 200 students and 30 faculty, and as de facto computer systems analyst fields phone calls from various school offices trying to master their new networks.

Here in the White Mountains of Western Maine, two hours from the nearest unbroken horizon, there is a long-standing celestial navigation course for teenagers. Celestial navigation programs for adults abound, and colleges and universities teach pilotage and celestial navigation. But Dr. Dresser's course is a unique offering at a school better known for its thorough college preparatory curriculum and its ski teams than for its link to the sea.

Dutch is a practicing navigator who regularly plies the Maine coast with his wife and younger son, Charles, aboard their 1954 Collemersbuilt Foursum sloop, Wind Song, and who frequently navigates offshore races, deliveries and cruises to Bermuda and the Canadian Maritime provinces.

Despite his love for sailing and both traditional and modern navigational practice, Dutch doesn't teach celestial navigation for its obvious applied value. He teaches it because he feels that it is a perfect vehicle to implement his philosophy of education. "Students are taught too many things formulaically," says Dresser. "Celestial mechanics and navigation provide wonderfully fertile grounds for students to ponder new spatial relationships and to find needs for mathematical tools formerly unimaginable. While many math

The station was looking for photo's of fathers and their mowers, and Don's was judged best. The new lawnmower is due to be delivered this week, but the Feeneys have no plans to get rid of its low-tech predecessors.

Fewer National Training Laboratories participants will be streaming into Bethel this summer, but their number may go up over the next few years as NTL expands its season here.

NTL labs started Monday. In May, NTL officials announced they would offer 12-weeks of summer programs in Bethel, but so far eight weeks of labs have been scheduled.

Director of Programs Nanci Appleman said when planned renovations are completed on the NTL conference center, the institute will begin expanding its season in Bethel.

Appleman said the plan, which is subject to financial review by the NTL board, calls for the Bethel NTL season to be expanded from the current eight weeks in June and July to possibly a May to October season by 1995 or 1996.

Last year the NTL Board of Directors announced they were suspend-

TOWN OFFICE EXPANSION

To the Editor:

Now that the town office has received after-the-fact approval for their expansion, I would like to make sure my reasons for pushing the matter are perfectly clear. It is not, as some may think, simply a matter of one neighbor not being able to get along with another. In fact, to the best of my knowledge, exactly the opposite situation exists—my relationship with town employees and officials is cordial and friendly.

I firmly believe that the recent ordinances we imposed on ourselves are stringent and overbearing. Ironically, my concerns were best summed up by a planning board member who said to the town manager at the town's application hearing, "I'll bet you'll be glad when this is over. This has really been a thorn in the town's side hasn't it?" The town manager nodded in agreement.

The site plan review as it currently exists is a "thorn in the side" of most businesses, potential businesses or any private individual wishing to rent their property for commercial purposes.

The town office had the benefit of being able to use a hard working volunteer STRETCH group from Telstar to do much of the legwork and keep down the expense of a site plan application. A private business does not have this luxury and must absorb the cost themselves.

The STRETCH group did a fine job with their application and I'm sure they learned a lot from doing it. I hope, though, that the most important lesson they may have learned is that when it is their turn to vote at town meetings, to think twice before voting in laws that affect "others" because the "others" might possibly become you.

Justice is best served when the governors are forced to follow the same rules as the governed.

REFLECTIONS ON MY YEAR BACK TO TEACHING

To the Editor:

Having just completed a year of teaching after six years of being employed locally in the "business world" I would like to make these comments to the SAD 44 community.

Teaching is very stressful—I spent many late nights and weekends getting together programs and extras for lesson plans to try to present my classes in an interesting and meaningful way to these grade 6-12 students. I tried to involve myself in their activities and know about them as people to try to encourage their growth in every way possible. This age group faces many changes both physical and emotional with many behavioral adjustments plus constant peer pressure. Families encourage their growth but place adult expectation on these young people. This is good—they also need to know respect and courtesy for others.

Having just come from the annual budget meeting, as well as from a week of Project Graduation activities that I volunteered to plan this year, I have many mixed emotions. I felt as I left the budget meeting that many members of this community did not have respect for teachers, did not feel they met their challenges; in fact, felt they had little worth as "humans and taxpayers of this town."

I returned from an all-night party with 75 students feeling that the majority felt we owed them this experience. Some of these kids had no respect or courtesy for us—65 of these kids at least had a great time playing volleyball, racquetball, watching movies and enjoying the last organized senior get-together—chemically free. About three of them had the courtesy to say thank-you. About three parents of graduating seniors provided parties with chemicals after graduation preventing several seniors from attending our party; some that had previously voiced their plans to attend.

This community has got to understand the value of the school, the teachers and the administrators—we are taxpayers; we work many long hours to help the young people develop in every way—socially, emotionally, etc. as well as mentally. We do not just work 7:31 to 3:30 with time to ourselves on all those other days not at school. We take classes and attend workshops and plan many hours for our school instructed time. Many days I have wished I were back at P.H. Chadbournes—at the computer in a quiet office and could go home at night and on weekends with a clear head and do what I wished with my family and friends.

I am asking that the community of SAD #44 appreciate your teaching segment and support us. I especially wish for your support for our activities in chemically-free things like Project Graduation. Give your young people a chance to have the best life possible—"Keep your dreams alive."

SAD #44 SEEKS INPUT

To the Editor:

During the past 14 months, 23 students, teachers, parents, and administrators have worked to develop a strategic plan for SAD #44. The group reviewed the research on the functions of a strategic planning team, the current literature of what schools in the 21 century will need, conducted a district wide survey as to what the families in the district believed the schools should be providing for education, and held discussions with students and staff as to their needs. Listed below is the working draft of those efforts.

The Strategic Planning team wishes to know what you think of the draft. Please address your comments or concerns to the Strategic Planning Team, RFD #1, Box 1220, Bethel, Me., 04217, by July 7. During the month of July the team will review your comments and prepare a final draft of the plan for school board approval in late August.

Issue number one: How SAD #44 can attract and support quality employees and volunteers. Goal: By 1994, all employees will complete six hours of professional development activities outside of the district, per year. Goal: By 1994, the board will have a creative/progressive compensation package that attracts and retains quality staff members. Goal: By 1995, the district will have a responsive, site-based staff development model in place and functioning. Goal: Over the next five years the district will continue to promote creative and innovative programs, such as Bread-loaf, STRETCH, CAP, DARE, Career Week, etc.

Issue number two: How are we going to decide where to use our money and other resources (employees, buildings, equipment, etc.). Goal: By 1993-94 the board of directors will follow the yearly school improvement plan in order to effectively allocate resources. Goal: By 1993-94 the district will begin to implement a system for ongoing program evaluation. Goal: By 1994-95 the district will begin to implement a system for ongoing program evaluation. Goal: By 1994-95 the board of directors will spend 50 percent and by 1997, 90 percent of its time setting educational priorities and the policies.

Issue number three: What changes or improvements need to be made in our educational offerings. Goal: By 1993-94 the board of directors will follow the yearly school improvement plan in order to direct changes and improvements in our educational offerings. Goal: The district will develop and implement innovative programming in the following areas: By 1993-94 alternative education for "at risk" high school students; by 1993-94 family literacy; by 1994-95 reality based curriculum in K-12; by 1994-95 cross generational education. Goal: Over the next five years the district will continue to expand programming in the following areas: Adult literacy in the workplace; experiential education; vocational education; early childhood intervention; education by developmental age.

Issue number four: How the school day and school year should School Administrative District #44's recent district budget meeting played out a scenario typically occurring all over the state. Most of the 200 plus who attended came away frustrated, angry, and disappointed. Board members felt slighted because they had thought they had presented a reasonable budget. Taxpayers were angry because they could not cut specific items in the budget (wages and benefits). Others questioned putting the cart before the horse (contract negotiations before the budget is set). Include in this discussion the cutting of state aid to education and the threat of losing one's dog fight. Through all this rhetoric the real situation within our schools is lost.

Public schools today are not what they were a generation ago. Children today come to school hungry, abused, and with physical and emotional handicaps that prevent effective learning. Include in this all the programs that have been added to the curriculum that were not part of education and one begins to define the problem. In the past learning was emphasized. Now we "teach" about AIDS, sex education, give fluoride treatments, have specialists in guidance (in reality psychological counseling), Chapter I, LD programs, DARE, C.A.P. (children are people), BI (behaviorally impaired) programs, migrant children programs, breakfast programs, day care, and hot lunch programs to name just a few. All these have been added and yet the school day has not been increased, nor the school year lengthened.

As many as a third of our students nationwide, drop out of school and many others "graduate" as functional illiterates. Yet the public demands that our schools do a better job with education (the three R's, etc.) even though less time is available to do this. The truth is that our public school system has become a social agency not an education system. The fact is that you cannot teach children if they are hungry, abused at home, and if there is no reinforcement at home of what is taught at school. We are at a crossroads and must collectively decide just what we want our schools to be and to do.

Due to these increased demands upon our educational system, the cost of education has skyrocketed and instructional time has decreased due to these added social programs. This year in Maine, we will spend over one billion dollars on public K-12 education.

There are, however, changes that are being implemented in Maine, such as the Common Core, restructuring, beacon schools in math and science education, and the tech prep program of the technical colleges. People need to learn more about these initiatives and they need to support them as we redefine education in the state.

Education is a community commitment and all of us, from parents, grandparents, business and labor leaders, retirees, administrators, teachers, school board members, and students must buy into change and work to make it happen. Lines of communication and cooperation between social agencies and schools must be defined and school preparation begun from birth. Our children must begin school ready and able to learn and parents must take responsibility to see that that happens. We cannot afford not to do this as we move into the 21st century and a global economy.

Rural health care reform

Over the course of the last year I have held several forums, town meetings, and hearings that have focused on the issue of health care reform. Although I heard from a series of health care experts, the most valuable advice I received during these events came from you, the citizens of the Second District. You uniformly told me that the health care system had to be reformed because it was not working.

Well, I listened carefully to your remarks and this week the first results from our labors were realized with the release of a policy paper outlining the Rural Health Care Bill of Rights. The release of the policy paper came about as a part of the overall plan of the Rural Health Care Coalition to address the special problems of the health care system in rural America.

The intent of this policy paper is to clearly enunciate the problems, goals, and recommendations of the Rural Health Care Coalition and interject our recommendations into the overall debate on health care reform. In other words, rural America has now laid its cards on the table with a clear plan to reform the health care system in America. With this action, whatever reform emerges from the debate our recommendations will be included. For Maine, this is critical.

The plan addresses four crucial areas and problems facing rural America and for Mainers they are all very familiar. They include the lack of health care professionals, the special problems facing rural health facilities, transportation, and education and prevention.

Attracting and retaining health care professionals in rural America has been an increasing problem for many states and communities around the nation. Maine is no different. Doctor shortages present a major barrier in accessing health care services. To address this problem, I recommended and the Coalition agreed that Congress must improve the existing incentives to medical professionals to practice in rural areas. Included in this recommendation is an increase in the level of cooperation between medical schools and rural health care facilities for the purpose of providing practical working experience.

Local communities should not have to go through what five towns in Aroostook County did when they joined together and levied a tax to pay for the medical education of a primary care physician, Dr. Roger Pelli.

Attracting and maintaining rural health care facilities presents similar problems as does attracting and keeping medical practitioners. Rural Maine, unfortunately, has recently seen the doors shut on several facilities. Therefore, the Coalition has recommended that Congress act to allow rural areas to explore networking among health care facilities to coordinate services and share technologies. This would require that anti-trust laws be changed but I think the benefit that would result is worth the change in the law. In addition, Medicare/Medicaid reimbursements need to be changed to reflect the higher costs often associated with providing services in rural areas.

Transportation is a problem that many people do not think about when they consider the problems facing the health care system. But in rural America it is a problem. Without a good transportation system quality is wasted. Therefore, the Coalition recommended an increase in the coordination and collaboration among transportation programs, an increase in funding to rural transit programs, the allowance of routine transportation services to be reimbursed under Medicare/Medicaid, an increase in assistance to Emergency Medical Service programs.

In order to enhance the lives of rural Americans, preventive health care services should be made available to all rural Americans. In addition to prevention, education is also a key part of our plan to enhance the health of rural individuals. This is especially important because rural citizens suffer from a higher rate of death from several significant diseases than their urban counterparts. As a result, the Coalition has recommended that grants to communities be made available so they may provide education programs to their populations. In addition, Public Health Service funding to state education systems should be increased to improve health education in the schools. Finally, to improve prevention, demonstration programs between the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Health and Human Services Department should be encouraged to use the Cooperative Ex-

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

All members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society are reminded that the next monthly meeting will be held on Thursday, July 2, and feature the annual Society picnic. This year it will be held at Narramissic (the historic Peabody-Fitch farm in South Bridgton).

Those wishing to attend the picnic, which will also include a museum tour, should gather at the Dr. Moses Mason House at 5 p.m. in order to car pool and to form a motorcade so that no one will get lost. Everyone attending is urged to bring a picnic lunch; as usual the Society will provide a beverage.

William Peabody, son of an early settler of Bridgton, built the present front section of the house in 1797 and lived there until his death in 1843. Basically a simplified Georgian center-chimney colonial form, the house was enlarged by William's son-in-law, George Fitch, in 1828, at which time Federal fan doorways were added to the structure along with the distinctive sweeping arch of the attached carriage house.

Auxiliary farm buildings were added up until the time of the Civil War, most notably the so-called "Temperance Barn," raised in the 1830s without the use of rum.

Ownership of the farm descended in the Fitch family until 1938 when Margaret M. Monroe of Providence, R.I. rescued the then derelict buildings and restored them as her summer home. She named the house Narramissic, an Abenaki Indian word meaning "hard to find." Title passed to the Bridgton Historical Society at Mrs. Monroe's death in 1986.

Today's visitor to Narramissic finds an ongoing restoration of an unspoiled early 19th century rural farm with an expansive view of the surrounding hills. Twenty acres of open fields are being reclaimed; period gardens and orchards are being brought back to their original state.

Inside the house, ten rooms furnished with locally made or used artifacts present a view of life in western Maine prior to the Civil War.

The Bethel planning board gave the newly formed District Exchange the go-head last week to open up its food and clothing bank in the Ethel Bisbee School basement.

The planners approved the project's change-of-use site plan application and waived all applicable fees.

"Since it's going to relieve the town of some other expenses, such as general assistance, it would be like charging ourselves if we required the fees," said board member Don Feeney.

District Exchange volunteers are planning an open house on opening day, June 30, from 4 to 7 p.m. Minimal fees will be charged to those purchasing the donated, used clothes and small household goods. All money raised will be used to stock the SAD #44 area emergency food pantry.

Besides running the exchange, the volunteers are also planning to work on special projects, such as helping burned out families, according to volunteer Freda Davis.

The group is in need of large household items, such as stoves, beds and refrigerators, she said, but has no place to store them.

The volunteers are working on a list of people who have large household goods stored and would be willing to donate them when needed.

The project organizers are also looking for volunteers to staff the District Exchange, Davis said. Initial plans call for the exchange to be open on Tuesdays from 4 to 7 p.m. and on Thursdays from 12 to 3 p.m.

Anyone interested in supporting or donating to the project can stop in at the open house or call Maryvonne Wheeler, 824-2330; Freda Davis, 836-3323 or Bethel Town Manager Madeleine Henley, 824-2669.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

All members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society are reminded that the next monthly meeting will be held on Thursday, July 2, and feature the annual society picnic. This year it will be held at Narramissic (the historic Peabody-Fitch farm in South Bridgton).

Those wishing to attend the picnic, which will also include a museum tour, should gather at the Dr. Moses Mason House at 5 p.m. in order to see a pool and to form a motorcade so that no one will get lost. Everyone attending is urged to bring a picnic lunch; as usual the Society will provide a beverage.

William Peabody, son of an early settler of Bridgton, built the present front section of the house in 1797 and lived there until his death in 1843. Basically a simplified Georgian center-chimney colonial form, the house was enlarged by William's son-in-law, George Fitch, in 1828, at which time Federal fan doorways were added to the structure along with the distinctive weeping arch of the attached carriage house.

Auxiliary farm buildings were added up until the time of the Civil War, most notably the so-called "Temperance Barn," raised in the 1830s without the use of rum.

Ownership of the farm descended in the Fitch family until 1938 when Margaret M. Monroe of Providence, R.I. rescued the then derelict buildings and restored them as her summer home. She named the house Narramissic, an Abenaki Indian word meaning "hard to find." Title passed to the Bridgton Historical Society at Mrs. Monroe's death in 1986.

Today's visitor to Narramissic finds an ongoing restoration of an unspoiled early 19th century rural farm with an expansive view of the surrounding hills. Twenty acres of open fields are being reclaimed; peonies and orchards are being brought back to their original state.

Inside the house, ten rooms furnished with locally made or used artifacts present a view of life in western Maine prior to the Civil War.

EBS closet, G & McG II clear planning board

By WENDY HANSCOM

The Bethel planning board gave the newly formed District Exchange the go-ahead last week to open up its food and clothing bank in the Ethel Bisbee School basement.

The planners approved the project's change-of-use site plan application and waived all applicable fees.

"Since it's going to relieve the town of some other expenses, such as general assistance, it would be like charging ourselves if we required the fees," said board member Don Feeney.

District Exchange volunteers are planning an open house on opening day, June 30, from 4 to 7 p.m.

Minimal fees will be charged to those purchasing the donated, used clothes and small household goods. All money raised will be used to stock the SAD #44 area emergency food pantry.

Besides running the exchange, the volunteers are also planning to work on special projects, such as helping burned out families, according to volunteer Freda Davis.

The group is in need of large household items, such as stoves, beds and refrigerators, she said, but has no place to store them.

The volunteers are working on a list of people who have large household goods stored and would be willing to donate them when needed.

The project organizers are also looking for volunteers to staff the District Exchange, Davis said. Initial plans call for the exchange to be open on Tuesdays from 4 to 7 p.m. and on Thursdays from 12 to 3 p.m.

Anyone interested in supporting or donating to the project can stop in at the open house or call Maryvonne Wheeler, 824-2330; Freda Davis, 836-3323 or Bethel Town Manager Madeleine Henley, 824-2669.

The District Exchange will be hosting an open house Tuesday, June 30, at the Ethel Bisbee School in Bethel.

Paul gets a pass on site review

Last week the planning board also ruled that Eric Paul, the new tenant of the former GAMM II building, will not have to go through the town's site plan review process.

The board ruled that Paul's screen printing business does not constitute a change of use of the building. The previous tenants manufactured garments.

Paul agreed last month to lease the 21,300-square-foot building from the town of Bethel.

He currently employs 18 people. Last week, he said he hopes to employ as many as 30 within the next two years.

The planning board also approved the town of Bethel's after-the-fact site plan review application for extensive renovations at the town office.

The remodeling was completed in 1990, but the town never went through the review process.

Bethel merchants, lead by Maine-Line Products Owner Rick Whitney, pressured the planning board to consider whether or not the renovations should have come under the town's site plan review ordinance.

After much debate, the board voted in October that the town should go through the review process.

Since the town owns no parking space near Main Street, its site plan recommends that Cole Block customers and employees park in the parking lot behind the fire station.

A group of Telstar High School senior STRETCH students prepared the town's site plan application, which was accepted by the board last week.

In other business, the board elected Frank Vogt as its chairman, Reggie Brown as vice-chair and Elaine Merrill as secretary.

PRE-TREK LINEUP--Last Weekend's American Lung Association's eighth annual Sunday River triathlon raised over $275,000. The three-day ride attracted 575 cyclists from all over New England and as far away as California. Before the trek, the cyclists posed for a photo, above. Other riders, right, prepared for the trip by adjusting their pedal cleats and getting a leg massage. Bikers pedaled 185 miles during the three days, with overnight stops at the University of Maine in Farmington and Colby College in Waterville. Along the way they consumed over 1,000 gallons of Crystal Spring water, 7,200 granola bars, 1,500 pounds of bananas, 4,000 cans of fruit juice and numerous other high energy snacks. Each trek participant raised a minimum of $300. All but 10 percent of the money raised for the lung association will stay in Maine. The Trek was sponsored by Sunday River Ski Resort, L.L. Bean, NewsChannel 13 and Keyes Fibre.

From the Bethel Police log:

Bethel police beating familiar paths

By WENDY HANSCOM

According to the police log for Monday through Thursday last week, Bethel police were beating a path to familiar places. They returned to Route 232 to listen to animal noise complaints and continue to respond to complaints at Bethel Park Apartments.

On Thursday police again spoke to Ron Duguay of Route 232. Duguay has been complaining for several weeks that his neighbor Wade Faulkingham's pigs are very noisy. This time Duguay said Faulkingham's chickens are too loud.

Officer Anne Burtram reported that Duguay said his neighbor's flock was making "chicken noises" by 4 a.m. some mornings.

Police Chief Dale Bellman said if he continues to get complaints about the animal noises, he's may turn the matter over to the district attorney's office to sort out.

Police were also back at Bethel Park Apartments on Thursday. Officer Darren Tripp responded to a report of loud music at the complex. At the Brian Goodrich apartment, Tripp reported he saw a juvenile drinking "a clear liquid" from a shot glass. Upon request, Goodrich provided Tripp with a pint of alcohol, that Tripp had seen in the apartment.

Tripp sent a request to the district attorney's office that Goodrich be summonsed for providing a minor a place to consume alcohol.

Last week, Tripp also summonsed a juvenile for illegal transportation of alcohol.

While on patrol Friday, Tripp stopped the juvenile at the Telstar High School parking lot. Tripp began to administer a field sobriety test, but the subject was "too uncoordinated and verbally abusive" to continue the test, Tripp's report said.

After giving the juvenile a balloon test, Tripp contacted the juvenile's parents, who took the boy home. The juvenile was issued a ticket for illegal transportation of alcohol. Other charges may be filed when police learn the juvenile's intoxication level from the balloon test results.

On Tuesday, Dwayne Bennett of the Bethel Irving Station reported a $60 battery had been stolen from his plow truck.

On Wednesday, Steve Price of the Middle Intervale Road reported his bedroom had been ransacked and $600 had been stolen.

On Wednesday, Telstar High School Assistant Principal Carroll Higgins reported that a school bus seat had been cut and destroyed by students. He provided police with a list of witnesses and the names of two suspects.

(Police log reports from Friday, June 20 on were not available by press time Tuesday.)

I'm writing this letter as a member of a New England Telephone employee team that has identified this as a serious threat to our safety. I would ask that members of the public, who rely on utility services we provide, be aware of the hazard that signs--placed innocently enough on a utility pole--might produce for employees.

ample, Bethel and Fort Kent--which are more than 300 miles apart.

"We have overnight in theory now," he said, "but the change will allow us to be more consistent."

Out earlier

For users of the Bethel Post Office, helping the postal service achieve that consistency will mean getting their outgoing mail to the post office by 3:15 p.m.--an hour earlier than present.

Users of other post offices will also have to get their mail in an hour earlier.

"And it's really a double whammy for us, since it was moved up an hour just a little while ago," said Robin Zinchuk, director of the Bethel Chamber of Commerce. In April of 1990, the pick-up time in Bethel was pushed ahead from 5 p.m. to 4:15.

At the urging of Attorney Reich, the local chamber of commerce has written to postal authorities protesting this latest change.

Bethel Postmaster Gayland "Gink" Dooen said that mail brought to the window by 3:30 will probably still go out that day, as long as it doesn't require further processing--such as certification or insurance.

The impact of the change will no doubt be felt most strongly by businesses that depend most heavily on the mail service, but even local wood mills will be affected.

Duane Gilbert, president of Gilbert

Manufacturing in Locke Mills, has filed a complaint with the local post office.

Gilbert explained that many of its customers are in different time zones, and call late in the day in urgent need of samples or information.

With the earlier closing at the Locke Mills Post Office, he said, it will be increasingly difficult to meet the requests on the same day.

NTL's Coan predicted the change would lead her organization to make more use of fax and UPS. Gilbert agreed, but noted that such options represent an increased cost for local businesses.

The Bethel area is not the first in Maine to go through such a change. Two years ago the Postal Service pushed ahead the pick-up time in Fort Kent to 3:30.

"It was a pain at first," said Jeanne Haley, executive secretary of the Fort Kent Chamber of Commerce, "but it subsided. Now everybody just gears up for the earlier closing."

And Bethel Postmaster Dooen noted that the change is only the latest in series of service cutbacks.

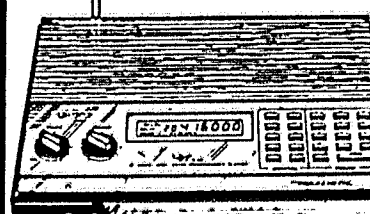

Dooen, who plans to retire soon, began handling the mail in Bethel in the late 1960s. "When I started there were three pick-ups a day during the week, two on Saturday, and one on Sunday," he said.

ing operations in Bethel, because of inadequate training space and complaints from staff and participants about facilities in Bethel.

After pressure from NTL members and the community, the board backed off its original stance and ultimately approved a five-year development plan for Bethel.

This summer NTL is offering programs it feels are especially suitable to its Bethel site, such as personal development, human interaction, training of trainers and member development, according to Appleman.

About 500 people, in groups of about 60 per week, are scheduled to participate in the 21 programs NTL will offer in Bethel this summer, she said. That's about half the number that came to town before NTL's Bethel restructuring.

Appleman said in the past NTL participants came to town in groups nearing 100 per week for a 12-week season.

But, Appleman added, if NTL's five-year strategic plan is fully implemented, NTL participants should swell to about 900 to 1,000 for a longer season.

As part of its long-range plan, NTL has also hired Kathi Schandemeier of Newry as the local site manager.

This summer, Schandemeier will gradually take over for NTL's current Bethel Manager Nancie Coan. After the NTL season, Schandemeier will oversee the renovations to the institute's conference house. Remodeling plans call for installing air conditioning and heating, insulation, upgrading the house kitchen, remodeling second-floor sleeping space into meeting rooms and making the building handicap accessible.

NTL's five-year plan also includes operating a year-round mail order business at the conference house, which Schandemeier would also be in charge of.

NTL has also begun offering its Sunrise Seminars—informal presentations by staff members. The seminars are open to the public free of charge. A list of the upcoming week's offers can be found on page 13.

The notion of celestial navigation is romantic enough and real enough to keep students interested through months of difficult word problems."

Dresser's students first study celestial mechanics learning technical definitions of terms like latitude, longitude, Greenwich hour angle, local hour angle, meridian angle, sidereal hour angle, declination, and the like. The blackboards in the classroom are crowded with complex three-dimensional drawings by period's end each day.

After students have mastered the relatively simple time diagram, they begin work on the mystifying today's tables in the Nautical Almanac, practices a bit with a collection of sextants, and discusses special celestial observations, all as they continue to work countless "word problems" and seem to enjoy it.

Despite their inland location, Gould Academy navigators have found ways to take their classroom to sea nearly every spring. Among other trips, Dresser and his navigators have chartered a 43' ketch and spent three continuous days and nights under way in the Gulf of Maine (Dresser is a licensed operator); with the help of John Todd, the school's Development Director and a retired frigate captain, they have practiced their skills aboard the U.S.S. Antrim; and they have enjoyed navigating the Laura diagram on the plane of the celestial meridian. "I spend a good deal of time with the diagram on the plane of the celestial meridian," says Dresser. "I like my students to be able to visualize celestial relationships and to gain a good feel for the celestial triangle. For students at this age, and any other age, I suspect, the visual attack on the problems pays big dividends in understanding."

Once the diagram on the plane of the celestial meridian is something that students can readily construct, discuss thoroughly and use to determine gross measures of altitude and azimuth angle, the small band of applied mathematicians looks into trigonometric means for solving the triangle for azimuth angle and co-altitude. Ordinary scientific calculators, programmable calculators and graphing calculators all get their turns resolving spherical triangles in a classroom where one is as likely to find a student at the board as the teacher. Triangle resolutions show the mundane, the altitude and azimuth of the sun in Bethel, today, and the exotic, the altitude and azimuth of Zubeneigenubi from a location in the South Pacific.

The group watches constellations and planets, tries out sight reduction tables ranging from H.O. 211 to

B., the Monhegan Island ferry, on an off day—the boat's owner, Jim Barstow, is a Gould parent.

One year boats were scarce, but a parent with a Beechcraft Baron was all set to help out; so, the navigators got to try their hands at navigating at a hundred and fifty knots.

Each year one of Gould Academy's best navigation student receives an award from "The Navigation Foundation." A perpetual "award hangs in Hanscom Hall and the student receives a personal award as well. "Over the last few years, my award recipients have gone on to the Naval Academy, MIT, Rennselaer and similar places," says Dresser. "This year's recipient will be a girl who is attending the Naval Academy next year."

"Whether these students use navigation skills for navigation or not makes little difference to me," says Dresser. "The experience they gather applying mathematical tools to real world problems which are continually different invariably stands them in good stead. With so many real problems to be considered in this world, I'm always at a loss to explain the need for artificial problems in any classroom."

G'wood meeting articles

Four additional agenda items will be included on the warrant for the June 30 Greenwood special town meeting, at which voters will decide whether or not to dismiss the town's long-time tax assessor, Herb Dunham, and to authorize selectmen to act as a tax assessing board. (See last week's Citizen.)

Selectmen will also ask voters to appropriate $1,655 to upgrade and replace the town office computer and printer; and to allow Rick Savage, new renter of the former D.J. Construction building next to the town office, to use the town's well water for one year. The building has no water supply of its own.

Residents will also vote on raising $4,000 for the infection control program. The program makes Hepatitis B shots available to town employees upon request.

Finally, voters will be asked to approve several minor word changes in the town's shoreland zoning ordinance. Selectman Marie Bartlett said no new guidelines or restrictions are being proposed.

The meeting will be held at the town hall at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, June 30.

Kids leaving for Spain

Fifteen Bethel area youngsters and their four chaperones are leaving for Mijas, Spain today.

This is the sixth year of the Bethel Rotary's Spanish exchange program and the third time Bethel youngsters have gone to Mijas.

This year's group will spend two weeks with host families in Mijas. The Bethel students will tour Spanish historical sites, spend a day on a Mediterranean beach and go to the World's Expo in Seville.

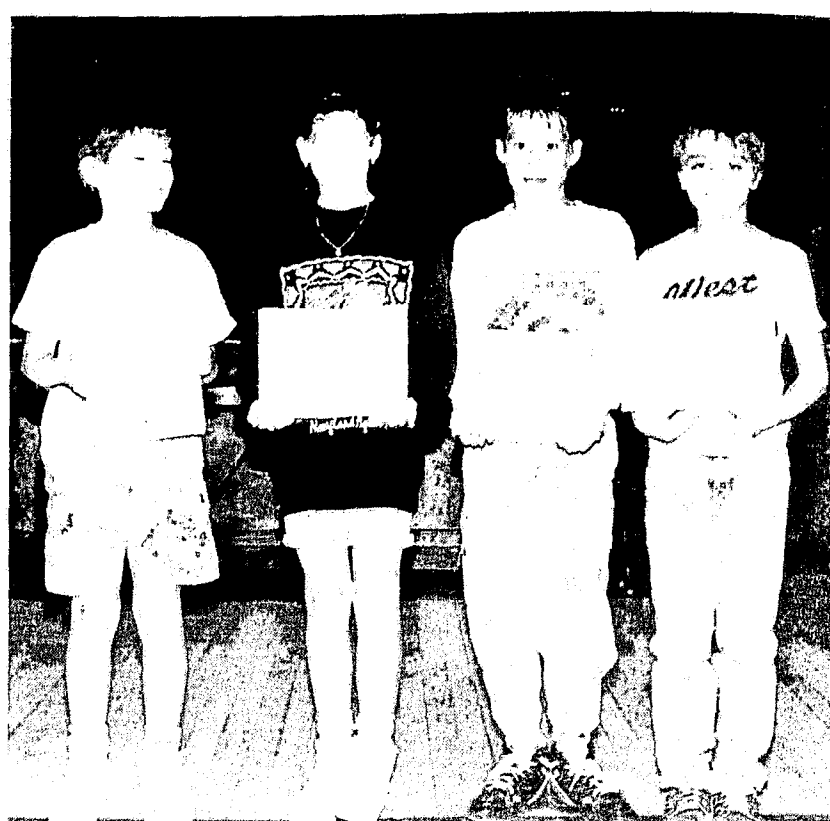

The youngsters have been raising money for the past year for their trip this summer. They held bottle drives every month, sold fruit and sponsored a pancake breakfast.

Chaperone Nancy Grover said plans are already underway for next summer's return visit by Mijas youths.

Bethel area families willing to host next year's Spanish visitors are needed, she said. Anyone interested in the program can contact Grover at 836-3533.

We finished up the year in grand style. The faculty remained the champs in the annual softball game against the sixth graders. However, it gets more difficult every year.

Vera Cross, Kathleen McAllister and Fannie Cummings accompanied Olive Risko to a Legion Auxiliary convention in Ellsworth. They left Thursday and planned to return on Sunday.

Jon and Marcia Smith and dog, Cocoa of Houlton are planning to spend Friday through Wednesday visiting her parents, John and Lorraine Mills in Locke Mills and his brother and sister-in-law, Don and Jane Smith in Livermore Falls, plus friends and relatives in the Wilton area. We are blessed as we get to keep the dog the whole time! Seriously, we don't mind but the dog worries. She was in a kennel and had various owners her first two years of life and she has not quite gotten the message that they plan to keep her all her life.

At the June meeting of the Historical Society, Curator Larry Billings spoke on "History in Literature." He quoted from many famous authors. New exhibits came from Basil Sequin, Francis Brooks, Annie Crockett, Larry Billings, Whitman Library, and Deke Brooks. The members paid several bills for materials used in building things. They complimented those who worked on the shelves upstairs. They also made plans for the summer. Curator Larry Billings has worked upstairs in the museum putting dishes on the new shelves. Two rare pieces of jewelry will be on exhibit in the historical museum throughout the month of June and July. One is an Edwardian necklace; the other is an Art Nouveau butterfly belt buckle. They are on loan from Curator Larry Billings. Be sure and see them. The July meeting of the Historical Society will feature a slide show of old pictures of Woodstock. Also, July 18 the Society will show the film "1911 The Year in Pictures" in the afternoon at the museum. Admission is free, but donations are encouraged.

Franklin Grange #124 met on Monday for a 3-point meeting with a 6:30 supper. Other granges attending were Oxford and Mt. Sugarloaf. Everyone was welcomed. We voted to let the Senior Citizens use the Jr. Hall and parking lot for July 16 for an auction. Viva Whitman reported as hanging in there. Dot Canwell is gaining. The program welcome was by Richard Felt; song "America the Beautiful" was sung by all; the treasurer read his part in rededication of the Grange; special reading by Carl Brooks "The Deck of Cards"; Larry Risko played his guitar and sang. Piano solos by Althea Fish; game by Peggy Blake; recitation by Lucille Holman; music by Grange band; Charlotte Cole sang and played; reading by Russell Yates "The Flag Speaks"; closing thought by Peggy Blake. Sixty-eight people were in attendance. Leah Deegan and Francis Harding received their 25-year certificates. Also Reynold Jordan and Lucia Verill received their 25-year certificates by mail. Next meeting will be July 6--C.W.A. meeting.

Woodstock Senior Citizens will be having an auction on Thursday, July 16 from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Bryant Pond Grange Hall parking lot. Final plans will be made at the July 2 meeting, which will be held at the Country Way at 11 a.m. with noon dinner.

Dear Florice,
I went walking down the Flat Road this morning to check on the status of our world. The bobolinks are in place in the fields, their nests hidden deep in the grasses, just out of reach of the hungry hay blades. The small hawks perch on their wiry lookouts and don't bother to fly away as I march by, safe in the knowledge that I am too big for their raptors, but not big enough to disturb their concentration. The bluebirds, cardinals, and orioles have taken up residence in the neighbors trees...not ours. As I made my way along the undulating macadam that is 'The Flat', the mountains beckoned me with the power of their multiple ridges and their multiple greens. The fields walked by my side, offering here and there the bovine and equine assurance that they would not change as long as those creatures needed them...I breathed in the serenity that is the gift of this place, and once again found myself recounting the treasures that abound by way of folk and flora, Florice and fauna.

There is always an activity or a happening that reminds the two of us of the serendipity of our choice of nest site...the church suppers are a chance to see and serve the larger community; last week's was no exception...the recent silver anniversary celebration of Linda and Reggie Westleigh brought out the best in many friends and relatives who stopped to congratulate the couple. Lisa and Paul Pivin, Jim and Joe Westleigh and assorted elves provided the perfect setting for a happy gathering. Thirza Herrick's cake was too beautiful to eat, but we ate it anyway and enjoyed every sugary morsel.

Last Sunday, a handful of us who usually watch and listen from the safety of our curved pews, ventured forth to deliver the service as stand-ins for our beloved John Williams, who, that weekend, happened to be occupied as stand-in for Ted Williams and his fly-casting buddy of Nissen fame. As John was hip deep in his waders, we several of the lucky laity were 'casting our bread upon the (Union Church) waters', as we delivered our meaningful messages, and regrouped a-la-receiving-line afterwards to accept the embraces and accolades of our assembled friends. Dan Grover got it all on tape; we'll review it first, and if it isn't too embarrassing, we'll bring it to you for your viewing pleasure.

At the recent terpsichorean treat at Telstar, the famous Miss Sue and her cast of thousands delighted the full house with a Mary Poppins theme and performances by dancers of all ages. We enjoyed the tapping and the jazzing of lines that included the three Paul grandchildren, Eva, Sarah, and Aaron; Lisa Pivin, her daughter Laura; Casandra Perez, Amanda Gilbert, and Jillian Kimball (daughter of John and Joan), not to mention the others whose names I'll forget and for which someone will chastise me. Emily Parsons and her peers showed their 'stuff' in several numbers as we applauded the improvement that one more year brings. The corps-de-ballet was especially pleasing to this former season-ticket-holder-to-a-box-in-the-loge (when the Wang center was the Met). And it was doubly rewarding to see Martha Grover and her toe shoes gliding through the number like a young Margot...I know that The Flat Road will soon be claiming Don Murphy as its native son once the world discovers him and he's off to the big time. He was an impressively metamorphosing Banks father, but showed his true colors in the chimney-sweep scene, as he led the group of fathers (including Jeff Parsons and Eric-your-son-Paul) in a rousing romp across the rooftops of a very cleverly constructed set...Can you tell that we enjoyed every minute of the production?

When the community capers quiet down, there is always the daily activity that occupies and awes. On this our hill we're playing catch-up with the gardens, the lawn, the pool, while we attempt to outwit the cutworms, the little grasshoppers, the pollen, and the root borers (or as Rupert calls them, those pesky root maggots). We plant and they eat. The broccoli withers from below; the peppers lose their entire infant stems to the jaws of some curled-up predator who bares his teeth while we sleep. But the irises thrive and display their magnificence at their Grover farm site and their transplant spot on our hill. And the hummingbirds visit...

As I draw this epistle to a close, dear friend, I'm off to acknowledge Linda's forty-something birthday. Frances Bennett's return to her own 'digs', and to get a Father's Day t-shirt for the father who lives here. Then it's off to Gray with Aunt Gerrie Floyd, who has enjoyed our ambience for several days, and returns to receive her own guests...I hope to visit you soon at your temporary quarters in South Paris, or better yet, in your own room of the grand windows-on-your-own-world. Maintain the good fight; know that we all love you and pray for you daily; enjoy Louie's attention and even his cooking...And if anyone should ask...the dispatch hour at our

At the recent terpsichorean treat at Telstar, the famous Miss Sue and her cast of thousands delighted the full house with a Mary Poppins theme and performances by dancers of all ages. We enjoyed the tapping and the jazzing of lines that included the three Paul grandchildren, Eva, Sarah, and Aaron; Lisa Pivin, her daughter Laura; Casandra Perez, Amanda Gilbert, and Jillian Kimball (daughter of John and Joan), not to mention the others whose names I'll forget and for which someone will chastise me. Emily Parsons and her peers showed their 'stuff' in several numbers as we applauded the improvement that one more year brings. The corps-de-ballet was especially pleasing to this former season-ticket-holder-to-a-box-in-the-loge (when the Wang center was the Met). And it was doubly rewarding to see Martha Grover and her toe shoes gliding through the number like a young Margot...I know that The Flat Road will soon be claiming Don Murphy as its native son once the world discovers him and he's off to the big time. He was an impressively metamorphosing Banks father, but showed his true colors in the chimney-sweep scene, as he led the group of fathers (including Jeff Parsons and Eric-your-son-Paul) in a rousing romp across the rooftops of a very cleverly constructed set...Can you tell that we enjoyed every minute of the production?

When the community capers quiet down, there is always the daily activity that occupies and awes. On this our hill we're playing catch-up with the gardens, the lawn, the pool, while we attempt to outwit the cutworms, the little grasshoppers, the pollen, and the root borers (or as Rupert calls them, those pesky root maggots). We plant and they eat. The broccoli withers from below; the peppers lose their entire infant stems to the jaws of some curled-up predator who bares his teeth while we sleep. But the irises thrive and display their magnificence at their Grover farm site and their transplant spot on our hill. And the hummingbirds visit...

As I draw this epistle to a close, dear friend, I'm off to acknowledge Linda's forty-something birthday, Frances Bennett's return to her own 'digs', and to get a Father's Day t-shirt for the father who lives here. Then it's off to Gray with Aunt Gerie Floyd, who has enjoyed our ambience for several days, and returns to receive her own guests...I hope to visit you soon at your temporary quarters in South Paris, or better yet, in your own room of the grand windows-on-your-own-world. Maintain the good fight; know that we all love you and pray for you daily; enjoy Louie's attention and even his cooking...And if anyone should ask...the dispatch hour at our post office will change on July first to 3:30 and the p.o. will close at 4:30...further proof that 'change is the only constant'.

We send you gentle hugs and prayerful good wishes... Love, C.B.

Saturday afternoon Norma and I and also Ethel attended an 80th birthday party honoring Mrs. Merlie Stone at her daughters' camp on one of Five Kezars in Lovell. I went home with Ethel so as to attend the Oxford Hills graduation where Sarah Bean was one of the 264 graduates.

Ethel, Craig and family brought me home Sunday for a birthday celebration for David Salway's 50th. Many family members attended from Auburn, Old Orchard Beach, Laconia, N.H., Hanover and the 'office crew'. Traditional refreshments and punch were served. Later Ethel and I went to the Bethel House for a party honoring Bea Grover on her 90th birthday, also the West Parish Congregational Church for the memorial service for Rollie Glines.

Mrs. Patty Noll was a recent caller here. On Thursday my brother and wife, the Roy Hunters of Unity, their daughter and husband, Russell and Jayne Rossilini, his son, Justin and her son Justin all of Orange City, Florida visited here.

Mrs. Louise Newton has returned to her summer home here. Her daughter Mrs. Colleen Bachelder and children of Mars Hill are spending the weekend there.

Helen Grover was taken to the Stephens Memorial Hospital one day last week and had various tests taken but is at home now and is feeling better.

John Evans had a new well drilled at his place this week. The Fox Bros. have been working for Gladys Kilgore, putting in new sills and new flooring in her barn.

Carleton Barker, Jr. did some bulldozing work for the Stoneham Rescue Unit for the new addition last week.

Delilah Millett is currently working in Minot taking care of Mrs. Dunn.

Our sympathy is with the family of Phil Peterson of Cranberry Isles who passed away on June 15. He was the father of Kitty Nelson. Donations in Phil's memory may be made to Northeast Harbor Ambulance Fund or Mount Desert Public Health Nursing Association. He had been in ill health for some time. Arrangements were handled by Fernald Funeral Chapel, Mt. Desert, Me.

Last week was a moose story and this week there is a bear story. Jim Morrison saw a middle-sized bear go up across Albert Nelson, Jr.'s yard about 8:30 p.m. one night this past week. I think I won't walk up there and come back after dark anymore.

On Wednesday, June 17 The Boy Scouts of America Troop 155 met for their regular meeting at 6:30 p.m. and at 8 p.m. they had a nice awards program which parents and grandparents were invited to. This was held at the Center Lovell Church and I was pleased to be invited. Several boys from town belong to this organization.

Eloise Vail has gone to Virginia to visit her daughter and while there will attend the graduation of her granddaughter.

Hannah F. Richardson Tent #19 D.U.V. held their regular meeting Wednesday night at the home of Helen Grover with six members present. Plans were made for the convention which will be held in Waterville on June 25 and 26. Regular business was taken care of during this short meeting and a light lunch was served after meeting was adjourned. Next meeting will be held September 23 at the K. of P. Hall. Members please all try to be there.

Heather Shugars wasn't to be outdone by her sister so she has the chicken pox this week. Hope you girls will be feeling better soon.

I heard last night that Bob Lageux, a former Stoneham resident has suffered a heart attack and is in the Stephens Memorial Hospital.

Pastor Rodney Hanscom performed the services on Sunday, June 14 at the Newry Community Church, and his daughter, Nancy was at the organ. The message of the day was "Where is Wisdom", from St. John 16:12-15. "I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now..." Also a reading by Gil Seeley on the three stages of consciousness. The "simple" consciousness, the "self" consciousness, and the "God" consciousness or the Holy Spirit.

The members of the Newry Mothers' Club who participated in the flea market were: Karlene Bachelder, Louise Tetley, Betsy Clark and Olive Anderson. No other members showed up. But anyway, these faithful members made a little money for the Club. Thank you ladies, and the ones who donated some food. P.S. Is the Club fading away?

The third annual Newry Community Day went on with a bang Sunday, June 14. There were plenty of fun, food and games. We thank the Newry Recreation Committee for a wild day.

The Newry "Bowling Gang" were at the Oxford Lanes. Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark, Louise Tetley, Gil Seeley, Olive Anderson and guests: Irene Hadfield, Rena Powers and Jim Anderson had a good time. Of the "lefties" Karlene was high on the triples, Betsy was high on the singles beating Karlene and Gil by one who tied for that string. Of the "righties" Irene was high on the triples and also high on the singles. All went to lunch and did some shopping.

Bill and Sylvia Wight attended the International Sno-mobile Congress in Madison, Wisconsin recently representing the Windy Valley's Club. The Clubs flea market was a great success and thanks everyone who donated articles, etc. We appreciate it very much. Georgia Brooks of Bethel won the beautiful hand crafted cedar chest from the tickets sold by the Club. Thank you everyone.

Sunday evening at 6:00 p.m. it is very humid and we have had some thunder showers, but didn't get much rain with them. A nice easy rain would help give the gardens a welcome watering. I'm glad to say that I now have all of my vegetable garden planted, thanks to the help I've had from Peggy. Now I have to start checking out what the bugs are eating and keep an eye out for woodchucks. I haven't seen one yet this year, but I expect they will be around.

On Monday, June 8, Peggy left her car in Norway. The paint was pitted in places and there was some surface rust, so she decided to have it patched up and painted. She got it back Friday and it looks like it had just left the show room. She had a loaner car to use while her car was being fixed up so, Monday evening, we went down to Stephen's Memorial Hospital to visit Dorothy Canwell. She felt at home and has a broken shoulder. We'll really miss her piano playing.

Wednesday was a little cooler and real nice with some breeze. Peggy went down to visit with her daughter, Myrna and husband Whitey, who live in Auburn. She visited there for several hours, then she went over to the Woolf home to stay with Viva until her daughter got home from work. They now have a lady coming to help out five days each week from early forenoon until 3:30 p.m. in the afternoon. She also takes Viva to the hospital each day for her radiation treatment. This is a big help to Viva's daughter.

Peggy was down here working and had dinner with me. After dinner, we went to Bryant Pond to help clean up the Grange Hall floors, and do some other cleaning. Our work crew consisted of Charlotte Cole, Robert and Wilma Day, also Peggy and myself. It sure looked much better, when we were done working. Thursday evening, Laura came down from East Andover and planted two rows of beans in the upper end of my garden. I had more room than I needed so was glad that she needed to use it.

Friday was fair but a hot day. Peggy went to work on the cards at the Laverdiere's Stores in South Paris and Bridgton. I needed a prescription and some groceries. When I got back home, it was too hot for me to do much out in the sun. In the afternoon, I had visitors from Hebron. Weino and Simonne Kyllonen and Simonne's sister called for a short visit. I used to tell milk at their farm many years ago, when I worked for the Dairy Herd Improvement Association. They had come over to Young's Greenhouse for tomato plants.

Saturday, I worked in the garden in the forenoon, but in the afternoon, we went to visit sister Laura in East Andover. She had bought a new riding lawnmower, and wanted to sell her old one and I thought I might be interested in buying it. I did decide to take it and Emerson and Loretta Merrill of West Bethel, went up and got it for me on Sunday morning. It is an old timer but the motor seems to run good and I didn't buy it with the idea of moving with it. I just wanted the tractor feature.

Peggy and I witnessed something at noontime on Saturday like we haven't witnessed before. A large size woodpecker was coming to the suet bag I have hung out back. Every time he came to eat, the male bluebird would drive him off. He came back several times and each time the bluebird insisted on his leaving. The bluebird claims the area back of our mobile home and he insists that, small or large, other birds must leave.

Peggy attended the dance at West Paris Grange Hall Saturday night. We enjoyed our first tubarub pie of the season today. I could have had one before by making it myself, but today Peggy took pity on me.

Sunday evening, June 14. Peggy went to a 50th Wedding Anniversary for Grace and Otis Evans. This was held at the American Legion Hall in Oxford. She reported that it was a good party and she had a good time.

Marsha Baxter of Oxford and her sister Ruth from Michigan visited Mary Lovejoy one evening this week.

David Small from Kennebunkport visited the Lovejoy family on Saturday. Irene and Bobby Miller from Jacksonville, Florida and Alabama, visited the Lovejoy family and other relatives in town recently.

Sunday, the Lovejoys entertained Helena Bartlett at their camp on North Pond. Mary reports that they already have deer checking out the garden. They also have some friendly coons and a mother woodchuck with three young living nearby. It sounds like an interesting summer for them. I'd suggest they start hanging out their sweaty shirts the same as I do. It seems to work for me. I must really be a stinker.

The state's increased setback restriction on great ponds and the rivers which flow to great ponds, from 75 feet to 100 feet, does not apply in Bethel's case as the town does not include any such ponds or rivers.

"Basically, we took the state's ordinance and molded it to meet Bethel's needs," Benjamin said.

The town's shoreland zoning committee, comprised of members Marcia Denison, Don Feeney, and Walter Hatch, spent eight months drafting the ordinance and revising the shoreland maps.

The residents who showed up for Thursday's meeting passed the ordinance unanimously.

District discipline

the investigation of the matter, terming it heavy handed and blatantly biased against the rights of the students.

In a letter to the district school directors, the family's attorney, Thomas S. Carey of Rumford, said the administration's approach was "not only unfair, but probably civilly actionable."

As part of that investigation, Telstar High School Assistant Principal Carroll Higgins, who handles disciplinary matters, had sent a memo to district staff seeking information on "negative attitude/behavior or any academic problems," of Ryan's.

Such information, Higgins wrote, "is very important for us to have in presenting our case."

In his letter to the board, Attorney Carey claimed that a reviewing tribunal (in this case the school board) would inevitably be prejudiced if it was forced to rely on such "exclusively negative information."

"Further," Carey wrote, "the (staff members receiving the memo) are sent an implicit message that the administration is interested only in negative information and, therefore, the respondent is more inclined to 'pile on' in order to be a 'team player.'"

The family has also protested the administration's handling of a subsequent situation last month, when Crockett and Ryan's sister Jennifer attempted to pass out memo's outside the main entrance and were ordered off the school property under threat of arrest for criminal trespass.

The memos solicited more information on the earlier incident, or any similar incidents involving cases where Higgins or high school principal Ted Davis were involved in alleged acts "of discrimination, labeling and discouraging the students of Telstar Regional High School."

Jennifer was a "top ten" Telstar graduate in 1990, and she will enter her junior year at the University of Alaska this fall. She claimed later that the atmosphere at her former high school had become poisoned.

"The school is going crazy," she said. "Some of the students hate that school so much. They're throwing food and banging on lockers after lunch. No one can control them. (The administration) is using Ryan as a scapegoat."

Once the administration sets its sights on you, she said, "If you don't end up quitting, they'll throw you out."

Freshman sues

cause another girl involved in the incident had not been disciplined, and she believed that "if I didn't go to school it would be an admission of guilt."

When she showed up for classes, school officials called the Bethel police to have the teen-ager removed from the school grounds.

Bethel Police Chief Dale Bellman handcuffed Yates just outside the front door of the high school and transported her to the county jail in South Paris, where she was fingerprinted, photographed and charged with criminal trespass.

And while Yates didn't anticipate being led from school in handcuffs—with her friends looking on—she says she'd do it again if necessary.

Augusta is mowing lawns this summer and selling items at yard sales to earn the $124.50 she owes her parents for court costs to date.

"We would have given her the money, but she wanted to do this herself," said Mrs. Yates.

"I see no harm in a child sticking up for herself," she said, admitting she was shocked to learn her daughter had been arrested and handcuffed. "If she really feels she is right and we can help prove she's right, then we'll continue."

Augusta, and not her parents, is the plaintiff in the suit against SAD #44. Her father has helped her pore over law books provided by the Maine Law Library in Augusta in filing the court documents. The family has not retained an attorney.

Mrs. Yates said Augusta is appealing the suspension on grounds that the school district's bus rules call for a student to be suspended from riding the bus "not suspended from school." She said the case will not focus on the fact that Augusta is black, but on the fact that the girl should never have been suspended nor charged with trespass.

According to SAD #44 Superintendent Dewaine Craig, the bus driver did not witness the incident, however, the driver signed the incident report against Yates, which led to the suspension.

Yates claims in her court documents that she has "suffered defamation of character due to the nature of the charges stated in the bus conduct report. The charges are misleading, erroneous and unsupported by substantial evidence."

"I think this has all been blown out of proportion," said Craig, who added that the district did not pursue formal charges.

Craig said he was surprised to learn Yates had been arrested and handcuffed at school. He thought Bellman was going to drive Yates home, not take her to the county jail.

Bellman is on vacation and unavailable for comment.

"When police transport people, they handcuff them," Craig said, adding, "If I had had it my way, that young lady would have gone home with her parents and the police would never have been involved."

"...that young lady made the choice (to involve the police). She knew what the consequences were going to be."

According to Mrs. Yates, however, her husband was working at the Boise Cascade Corp. paper mill in Rumford when school officials called the police. The family has only one operating car and Mr. Yates could not leave his station at a paper machine. Mrs. Yates said school officials knew she could not pick up her daughter that morning in Bethel.

Craig said Yates is only the second student in his nine years at the school to have been taken into police custody and handcuffed during classes. The first person was a boy who was "out of control," he said.

Yates was confined to a small room for several hours until her father signed for her release after his afternoon shift ended.

"It was quite embarrassing and humiliating for her to be handcuffed in front of her friends," said Mrs. Yates. While her daughter was awaiting release in South Paris, she telephoned the county jail often.

"I kept calling to tell her 'if you're scared I'll find some way to come and get you'....I worried about her to death."

Mrs. Yates said Monday that attorneys for SAD #44 have contacted the family and want to settle the matter out of court. "They want to talk," she said, sometime this week.

Augusta Yates concedes the experience was embarrassing for her. She says some students teased her after the incident and called her "jailbird." But she plans to continue her battle to clear her name.

"If you really believe in something you can do just about anything to accomplish what you need to accomplish," Yates said.

Crockett said that Higgins later apologized for his handling of the investigation (The Citizen has been unable to confirm this), but she is nonetheless considering civil suits against the district for slander and civil rights violations.

Superintendent of Schools Dewaine Craig said Tuesday that he struck her on the left side of her face. Yates retaliated by hitting the student on the back, apparently several times, with her open hand, she said.

The other girl involved in the alleged fight has said she struck Yates accidentally. The girl's mother said Monday that her daughter was trying to wrestle her bookbag from Yates when the initial contact occurred.

The mother said Yates repeatedly struck back at her daughter, including pulling her daughter's hair.

SAD #44 Superintendent Dewaine Craig said Monday the other girl "inadvertently back-handed" Yates as she was trying to get Yates away from her schoolbag.

Bus driver Paula Smith did not witness the incident, but filed the Bus Conduct Report that led to Yates' suspension.

"I didn't see it (the Feb. 27 incident). I'm just telling you what people told me," Smith said Monday.

Craig said only Yates was disciplined because the other girls' actions did not warrant school punishment.

Smith said she often files complaints against students without witnessing the incidents. "A lot of times they tell me things," she said. "They're usually reliable."

Smith said the students did not tell her whether the middle school girl struck Yates accidentally or on purpose.

"I have no idea," Smith said.

Smith said she did not talk with Yates about the incident prior to filing the report. Nor did she speak with the middle school student, she said.

Smith said Yates had not been a problem on the bus before the February incident and no other reports have been filed on the freshman.

Bus reports were filed by Smith on the four girls involved in the incident. Craig, in upholding the suspension, investigated the incident for three days, he said. He interviewed Yates and the middle school girl and talked with witnesses.

The report that led to Yates' suspension stated that Yates had written the notes, slapped one of the middle school girls and threatened another.

Yates, who has filed suit in Oxford County Superior Court in South Paris, denies she wrote the notes and threatened a student. She admits to striking back at the

Rotary Club notes

Robin Zinchuk, club member, was the speaker at the June 16 meeting of the Bethel Rotary Club, held at the Bethel Inn.

Robin gave a "Classification Talk" where she shared a little about her upbringing, hobbies, family, professional life and her dreams. Robin was born and raised in East Brunswick, N.J. and went to Montclair State College, where she graduated with a B.S. in physical education in 1978. She travelled a great deal with her family growing up and then again after college when she decided to come to Maine. Robin met her husband, Douglas, in North Paris, where he owned and operated the North Paris Country Store. They operated it together for four and a half years and then the state bought the property to relocate Route 219.

Robin and Doug moved to the Chapman House with their son, Daniel, and they opened the bed and breakfast in January 1984. After Brian was born and Kevin was "on the way" they hired innkeepers and moved to their home on Songo Pond. Since, Matthew was born and the four boys keep Robin and Doug very busy.

Robin started with the Chamber of Commerce in 1984 as a volunteer and then in 1986 was hired as the executive director. She finds Chamber work very challenging and enjoyable.

Robin enjoys most her work in service to the community through the Rotary, through church, as a school volunteer and as a active parent. She hopes someday to do more travelling, become more active musically and to continue to find time to be an active parent and community volunteer.

Nathan Seckinger presented Rotary Information and reflected on an article in Rotary Magazine about "Doll Therapy." This is a program whereby children are educated on the exterior appearance, especially of burn victims. The message that is trying to be conveyed is that a person is what is "inside" more than what they appear to be on the "outside."

President David Murphy urged all club members to actively search for items of value for our annual Rotary auction, to be held on Friday, July 17, in the evening. If you have any donations please get in touch with a Rotarian for pick up.

Guests for the morning were Joe DeMarco and Carl Hansen of Bethel and Norm from the Bridgton Lakes Region Club.

Task force notes:

Sixty-eight local and NTL people turned out for an NTL welcoming reception at the home of Bethel Area Task Force leader, Rev. Gwyneth Bohr, last Thursday.

Jane Watkins, president-elect of the board of NTL, said in brief remarks that it was a much more comfortable arrival this year than last year. Watkins referred to strong local reaction a year ago when the NTL announced expected closing of Bethel operations after the summer of 1991. NTL operations manager, Nancy Appleman-Vassil credited the efforts and talents of a combined NTL/Task Force team, which worked to develop the five-year Strategic Plan that has included the continuance of NTL's presence in Bethel: Nancie Coan, Jane Moosbrucker and Nancy Davis.

The Bethel Area Task Force resulted from the response of many area-wide citizens who have appreciated the long history and economic/social/educational benefits of NTL's history in Bethel since 1947. While addressing the NTL situation was an immediate focus of the Task Force, it was obvious that these people were also concerned about many other local needs. Commercial/industrial development, educational/cultural opportunities, facilities for older citizens, and recreational opportunities are a few on which subcommittees are still working.

Sunrise Seminars

Bethel area residents and visitors are invited to attend NTL institute's 1992 Sunrise Seminars. The seminars are informal presentation by staff members (and sometimes others), who are a changing group each week. The seminars are free of charge and open to all interested Bethel area persons. Coffee and tea will be provided.

The time is 7:15-8 a.m. and the place is the Bethel Inn Conference Center lobby (except as noted).

Sunrise seminars this week are as follows:

Wednesday, June 24: Maria Termini, "Colorsongs: A Journey into the Richness of the Imagination", slide and presentation and discussion.

Thursday, June 25: Michael Broom, "Curiosity: A Tool for Empowerment."

Friday, June 26: Elsie Cross, "Managing Diversity."

Saturday, June 27: Dennis DaRos, "Diversity Work: Its Impact on White Men in the Organization."

Sunday, June 28: Don Coverdale and others, "Workshop Experience," at the NTL In-Tent, located in the woods at the end of the NTL property.

Please call the NTL administration Office at 824-2151 for further details.

New Reforms Speed
Medication Approval

Last year the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) tied an earlier record (1985) for the most new molecular drug entities approved in a single year. Thirty-one new medicines were approved in 1991. Some of the medicines approved were not distributed to pharmacies, however, until 1992. Part of the credit for the increase in prescription products is being attributed to a federal plan to speed up the drug approval process, a process that has been criticized by many officials and victims of life-threatening illnesses. Most of the concerns have come from persons who cannot understand why it often takes 10 years for a new drug to make it through the entire approval process.

Key elements in the new movement toward faster approval of needed medicines are listed in a recent issue of American Medical News. According to the report, the FDA may allow indicators other than prolonged survival or longer time periods without disease to prove a medicine's effectiveness. Another element that should speed the approval process is the use of outside contractors to review applications. These approaches are expected to help reduce the backlog of pending applications. According to the report, guidelines soon will be released which allow animal testing in another country to be accepted for review in the U.S.

How To Improve Your Business Cash Flow

This article is brought to you
by Jane D. Gray, CPA

How well you manage cash flow substantially affects your business's profitability and longevity. Here are some suggestions for improving cash flow.

Start with accounts receivable, probably your most important source of cash. Speed up your order-taking, shipping, billing, and depositing procedures. Allow customers to fax in their orders. Then ship as soon as possible. (Doing so also pleases the customer.) Send out invoices quickly - within a day or two after shipment if possible. Then deposit checks on the day received.

Get a handle on credit sales. Categorize your accounts into an "aging" schedule to see which ones are due and which ones are overdue by 30, 60, or 90+ days, respectively. Call the overdue accounts to find out if there is a valid reason for withholding payment. If there is none, request immediate payment or arrange a payment schedule. Cut off credit sales to chronic late payers, and if necessary, refer their accounts to a collection agency or an attorney. Finally, consider doing a credit check before extending credit to new customers. Ask for (and call) their credit references.

With cash outflow, slow everything down. Except for paying quickly to capture a discount, pay invoices at the last minute. At 10% interest, for example, paying a $10,000 invoice on July 31 (when due) instead of July 5 (when received) can save you about $70 in foregone interest. Also, use credit cards for travel and lodging expenses and require your employees to do the same. This reduces immediate outflow.

Do you need all the inventory you carry? Reduce this stockpile of unprocessed cash as much as possible. Don't reorder slow-moving items. Also, look for suppliers who deliver quickly so you can wait longer before reordering.

Finally, convert idle, unusable assets into cash.

THOUGHTS FROM THE Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, brings you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words, comfort and help for your daily life.

An analyst of world affairs recently reflected on a sign of crisis in the countries of eastern Europe: empty pedestals. Statues of Stalin, Lenin and others were torn down with a great rush of courageous glee. But nothing has yet been erected in their place. The people of these countries are struggling to find those people and truths worthy of their loyalty, whom they will trust and follow.

Our own pedestals may seem alarmingly like those of the East. We seem to know more about the failings of our leaders than we do of their virtues. We are reminded of Paul's words to those who fancy themselves wise in this age, that what passes as wisdom masks foolishness and that there is no cause to boast about human leadership.

Must we descend into cynicism,

CARD OF THANKS

Family, friends and anyone who was part of our mother's life, we would personally like to thank each and everyone of you.

Losing someone who is very close to you is a painful experience but with all your support it made this time of grief much easier.

If there is an eternal life after death we believe Mother & Father are together looking down upon us all with a smile.

We love you
Nellie Olson's Children
& Grand Children

then? Only if we have tricked ourselves into thinking that we are ultimately in charge. We can participate in public decisions, rely on our powers of discernment, demand honesty and integrity from our leaders—and we can pray. Perhaps what we need is more an art than a science—an ability to respect human leadership without blind reverence, courage to work to affect our world, and always a clear conviction that true goodness will come not from us or any other person, but from God. Statues may crumble and pedestals stand empty, but God's truth will stand. For that we can replace our cynicism with thanksgiving.

Obituaries

WILLARD E. BATCHELDER

Willard E. Batchelder, 80, died unexpectedly June 12, 1992 at his farm in South Rumford, where he had lived most of his life.

He was born in West Burke, Vt., Oct. 15, 1911, the son of Roy and Grace (Willard) Batchelder. He graduated from Stephens High School in Rumford, where he was very active in sports. Mr. Batchelder, a dairy farmer all of his life, owned and operated the Batchelder Dairy Farm in South Rumford for many years. He was a member of Lyndonville United Methodist Church in Vermont, and after graduation from high school was well-known as an amateur boxer; he also loved baseball.

Mr. Batchelder is survived by a sister, Mrs. Geraldine Marston of Andover, and several nieces and nephews. He was predeceased by a brother, Eugene Batchelder, and a sister, Mrs. Ruth Patrick.

Services were held on Monday June 15, 1992 at 10 a.m. at the Meader and Son Funeral Home 3 Franklin St., Rumford with Rev. Linda Shevlin, Pastor of the Rumford United Methodist Church officiating. Committal services were conducted by Rev. Shevlin. Interment was in the Hillside Cemetery in East Charleston, Vermont.

MARIE G. SWAN

Marie G. Swan, 70, of Spring Street, Bethel, died Thursday, June 18, 1992, at Central Maine Medical Center in Lewiston after a long illness.

She was born at Bethel Nov. 4, 1921, the daughter of Theodore and Alice Robinson Gallant, attended Bethel schools and was a lifelong resident of the town. She was the widow of Frank H. Swan, who died Aug. 21, 1944. Mrs. Swan was employed by several area wood-working mills and retired from the former Hanover Dowel Co. in 1984. She found enjoyment in home projects such as paperhanging, painting or out-of-doors projects, as well as crocheting, embroidery, knitting and spending time with her family and friends.

Mrs. Swan is survived by a son, Frank W. Swan of Turner, with whom she has been staying while in failing health; a brother, Stanley Gallant and two sisters, Margaret Belanger and Louella Sciaraffa, all of Bethel; and a grandson. She was predeceased by a grandson, Chad E.

Swan, Feb. 4, 1990.

Funeral services were held Sunday, June 21, at the Greenleaf Funeral Home with Rev. David Wood of the Lewiston United Baptist Church officiating. Interment was in the Riverside Cemetery, Bethel. In lieu of flowers, donations in her memory may be made to Androscoggin Home Health Services, P.O. Box 1600, Auburn, Me., 04210.

CROSS-COUNTRY QUILTERS

On June 2 the last gathering of the 1991-92 quilting season was hosted by Mabel Kennett at her home, with seven members attending. After those present unveiled their unique creation each had made from their "Challenge" fabrics, they discussed plans for the 1992-93 season.

Officer's positions were cut to two. Ruth Feeney will continue as treasurer and also serve as our chapter's contact person in the Pine Tree Quilters' Guild. Barbara Honkala will be Secretary again.

A brown-bag lunch, with desserts and beverages served by the hostess, ended a lively discussion of several interesting proposals for programs when meetings resume in the fall. The first fall meeting will be Sept. 15 at the Bethel Library. All quilters are welcome.

In the meantime, this summer, the Middle Intervale Meeting House Benefit Quilt Show is planned for Aug. 22 at the meeting house. It is a fine opportunity to show quilts to the many interested people who come. The committee also needs help in putting on the show. Contact Geraldine Howe, 824-3188, if you want to show a quilt or if you can give a couple of hours of your time. She also has tickets for the beautiful raffle quilt.

Other Maine made quilts may be seen at the Maine Quilts '92 Show on July 24, 25, 26 at the Lewiston High School.

WEST PARIS YOUTH HOME

FROM GERMAN EXCHANGE

Maylene Cummings is returning to her home in West Paris after a year as a foreign exchange student in Göttingen, Germany.

Maylene has spent the past school year with a German host family in Göttingen. She was a exchange student in the U.S. Congress/Bundestag Scholarship program.

The program was developed to encourage a better relationship between Germany and the U.S.

The German Parliament gives American students the opportunity to live with a German family, while the American Congress supports their counterparts in the U.S.

Maylene is a 1992 graduate of Oxford Hills High School. She will be attending Colby College in the fall.

A celebration of her return will be held June 27 at 7:30 p.m. at her home in West Paris. Anyone is welcome to attend. For more information call 674-2833.

BOAT SPEED REMINDER

Law enforcement officials are reminding boaters of Maine's law prohibiting watercraft operation faster than "headway speed" within 200 feet of shore.

Chief Game Warden Bill Vernon says the two-year-old law applies to all shorelines of all waters of the state, including the shorelines of islands and tidal waters, and to all types of watercraft, including jet skis and other personal watercraft. He says the law grants exceptions only to boats actively engaged in fishing and boats picking up or discharging water-skiers.

In Memory of Our Father Robert J. Lowe

1/18/23 - 6/28/90

Written By Jane Rolfe

I know they say that you've just gone away!
Yet my heart knows the difference in the pain each day.
Some lose more than others, some always do.
You had no control, over what happened to you.

If people knew ahead when the end was near,
The days would be sad for there would be so many tears.
Or would they be different if we knew about the end.
Would there be so much laughter, with no tears to descend.

Would the world be sadder if we knew what lay ahead or would it be brighter with the love flowing instead.
I only know what we felt on that sunny hot day.
Pain, tears, and strength in the most emotional way.
As time passes by, the pain still lingers on.
Knowing and accepting that you will always be gone.
In everyone's heart there loved ones loss is deep.
Thinking of you at the point I fall asleep.

These thoughts of you cover everyone's pain.
Just little words repeating it again.
From the loss of our Father to us on that day.

We love him always in our own special way.

We miss our father, we miss him so much.
But our thoughts of him always keep him in touch.
So before the time comes and it's too late for you to say, tell them you love them in your own special way.

Lovingly Remembered
